CHIEF JUSTICE APOLOGIZED.

Regrets Having Employed the Lingo of the Boxing Ring.

Even chief justices are betrayed into slang occasionally, according to the London Chronicle. Sir John Madden, chief justice and lieutenant governor of Victoria, angry at the absence of all the barristers in a libel case that was down for hearing, characterized the proceeding as a "fake." This is a piece of pugilistic slang and is understood to mean a make-believe fight, both boxers having previously agreed as to the final issue. London and New York have witnessed many such "fakes." Next morning the three It is blood deep. When the blood is leading barristers appeared in court, explained their absence and indignantly repudiated any idea of a "fake." Discovery of a Town.

An entire town has recently been discovered in the dominions of the czar of the existence of which no one seems to have had any idea. Deep in the forests of the Ural lies a flourishing city, the inhabitants of which speak a curious language of their own, free from opium, cocaine and other and seem to form a sort of ideal commonwealth, in which taxes and taxgatherers, among other troublesome things, are unheard of.

DEAR SIR:-I suffered ten years with severe kidney and bladder troubles and at times was unable to work. I was advised to try your Texas Wonder and after using onefourth of one bottle I passed a large gravel and I have never suffered since passing the same three years ago, and I have recommended it to many others who reported themselves cured. I most heartily recommend it to all sufferers from kindey or bladder

LABOUCHERE IN HIS YOUTH

Noted Englishman Had as Ready a Wif Then as Now.

Labouchere, says Joseph Hatton, in The People, was sent by the British Kissing in broad daylight on minister "to look after some Irish In the evening of his arrival the at-Abel Davis, a life insurance tache incontinently entered a gaming lar on food. It was summer, and he The officer approached the two slept on a bench on the common. In But he had nothing with which to buy himself a breakfast. Toward evening he grew very hungry, and entered a restaurant and ordered dinner, without any clear idea of how he was to pay the bill, except to leave his coat in pledge. And here comes in an example of young Labouchere's luck, tempered by a ready wit. As the hungry and, for the time being, penniless attache ate his dinner he observed that all the waiters were Irishmen, and that they not only continually stared at him. but were evidently discussing him with one another. A guilty conscience induced him to think that this on his wife's cheek and the crowd was because of his impecunious appearance, and that they were making calculations as to the value of his clothes. At last one of them approached their anxious customer and in a low voice said: "I beg your pardon, sir; are you the patriot Meagher?' Now, this patriot was a gentleman who had aided Smith O'Brien in his Irish rising, and had been sent to Australia, and had escaped thence to the United States.

patriots," said Labouchere, telling me lines. the story, "so I put my finger before my lips and said 'Hush!' at the same time casting my eyes up to the ceiling, as though I saw a vision of Erin beckoning me. It was felt at once that I was Meagher. The choicest viands were placed before me, and most excellent wine. When I had done justice to all the good things I went to the bar and boldly asked for my bill. The proprietor, also an Irishman, said From a man like you, who has suffered in the good cause, I can take no money; allow a brother patriot to shake hands with you.' I allowed him." He further allowed the waiters to shake hands with him, and then stalked forth, with the stern, resolved but somewhat condescending, air which he had seen assumed by patriots in exile. Again he slept on the common; again he washed in the bay. Then he went to the post office, got his money and breakfasted.

CATCHING THE AUTOMOBILIST.

Accurate Little Chronometers Aid Police in Judging Their Speed.

In the daily war for supremacy now waged in Paris between the police and stantly devising fresh methods for catching the latter in the act of furious driving. According to a Chicago Daily News dispatch the authorities have just made a new move by investing in a large stock of high-priced chronometers. Special policemen have been provided with these instruments and sent to the Bois de Boulogue to watch offending automobilists. The policeman takes up his stand on a given spot, the distance from which to another point in view has previously been accurately measured. When a motorman passes the first place the policeman times him during his progress to the second, and when he reaches the latter invariably nabs him for furious driving. In nine cases out of ten the automobilist can only plead guilty when confronted by the unimpeachable evidence of his time taken on a first-class chronom-
